The Hospital de Sant Pau in Barcelona and the Sagrada Familia share a deep historical and architectural connection. Both masterpieces were designed by the renowned modernist architect Antoni Gaud, who left an indelible mark on the city. Inaugurated in 1930, the Hospital de Sant Pau is an outstanding example of Gaud's work in terms of ornamental beauty and architectural functionality. On the other hand, the Sagrada Familia, although still under construction, is an iconic monument that defines the Barcelona skyline and symbolizes Gaud's creativity and innovation. Additionally, the Avinguda Gaud physically connects these two emblematic structures, serving as a thoroughfare that links Gaud's architectural legacy and highlights his enduring influence on the city of Barcelona, both in the medical and religious-cultural spheres. Right between these two Barcelona icons, we offer you this incredible gem where you can move in directly. In a stately building,...
